Daily Dose of Graphics: An interesting new idea Hi there! We just wanted to share with you our Daily Dose of Graphics today. It's been an amazing time, looking at other blogs and browsing other peoples work. If you're new to us, here's a little summary of what we do: we create photo-to-graphics pieces. When we moved out to Edinburgh from London we felt we needed a new creative outlet and so we decided to start making photos into graphics. We'd always both drawn, sketched or made a mess of traditional art things so it was always a matter of finding out what we like the most, and what we're good at. So far we've taken an image that we have a connection with and tried to create a piece of art from it. The piece may take a different form on each day or week. We also do a photo-a-day challenge, where we look at an image and create something for that image. Some days we've posted a photo that was taken by us and other days we've picked a photo from the Flickr Creative Commons, or any photo from Flickr that we like. We're keen to try out new techniques, any techniques, as well as explore new media. We're not afraid to try something out if it'll take us somewhere new. If we dig something out of it, that's usually a good start. We'd love to hear from you, what you think of our Daily Dose of Graphics, if you have any feedback, or if you'd like to share something. This is a collaboration, for us and you, so if there are any images you'd like to see, just tell us. And if you'd like to be a part of this, please shoot us an email or get in touch. And I just found this, which I'm gonna link to in my post, and yep, my work and what I like to do is what they recommend. It's about: Hi, we're Matt & Claire, aka One of the Makers. We live in Edinburgh, Scotland. We like to collaborate and work together as a team, which is a big part of why we've gone into business as One of the Makers. We work with a range of clients from weddings to music PR, but as the owner we also work on all aspects of design, including our own photography and branding. We've been
